Scene at the Armory.

The best of the volunteer fire companies, after having marched and regimined in the streets, were now gathered in the Armory of the city of Chicago, to receive the prizes which they had won in the contest. The prizes were brought in by the companies, and were placed on a table in the center of the hall. The prizes were of various kinds, and were of great value. The prizes were of various kinds, and were of great value. The prizes were of various kinds, and were of great value.
